The Purpose of a Seal

When documents are required to be given under the Common Seal of a local authority, company or other corporate body, the familiar sealing clause should properly be accompanied by a worthy impression of the seal, the hallmark of office from which it emanates. Seals can also be used for many other functions and events such as a personal stationary seal, sealing invitations for weddings and other important occasions, endorsing certificates or diplomas and for sealing limited edition prints and corporate gifts. All embossing seals are designed to be used with one page of 20lb bond paper at a time or one paper foil seal at a time before being placed onto your document. If you require a seal for heavy bond paper, art or other heavy materials please contact us for solutions for embossing or stamping onto these materials.

Custom Standard Machine Engraved Seals

The popular traditional Corporate and Notary Public seal used extensively as an attractive part of the Company registration package are conventionally set within two rings and are the preferred method of marking official documents, certificates and a whole host of other stationary.

A machine engraved metal die expertly mounted accompanied with a metal counter into one of our sturdy heavy duty frames provides for a crisp, clean and tamper proof embossed image for use on a single layer of normal bond 20 lb. paper or a paper foil certificate label prior to adhering to a certificate or other stationary.

Custom Logo Machine Engraved Seals

Many companies and organizations choose to incorporate a logo within their seal design or solely use a logo as a representation of their company.

Clients can either supply their own artwork or have us create the artwork for them.

Once the artwork is finalized, we will machine engrave your design onto a solid metal die expertly mounted and accompanied with a metal counter into a dedicated heavy duty cam operated press with a rubberized handle.

This dedicated press allows the operator to place additional force when using the press without having to exert added pressure through the hand.
